

NOW BEGINS THE CHORUS OF THANKSGIVING, AND THROUGHOUT THE REFRAIN IS HEARD THE MOTIF, "GOBBLE, GOBBLE, GOBBLE"

HOW THANKSGIVING WILL BE OBSERVED

Spanish War Veterans of the Department of the District of Columbia will entertain the members at a smoker and campfire Wednesday evening.

The People's Mission, at 910 Pennsylvania avenue, northwest, will hold special Thanksgiving services.

The members of the Women's League of East Washington will make their annual Thanksgiving rounds among the poor. A meeting is announced for the "New National Thought Center," at Newnacher's, at 4 p. m. Thursday.

Quiet Time for Some, Strenuous Day for Others

Commissioner Warner will spend Thanksgiving Day in a quiet way. He will remain at home in company with his wife. They will entertain few intimate friends.

Charles A. Stillings, the new Public Printer, will spend a strenuous day tomorrow. The greater part of the time will be spent in the office at the G. P. O. He will take dinner with his wife at the New Willard. The evening he may spend at his office or he may go to the theater.

Capt. William M. Meredith, Director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, will spend Thanksgiving Day at home with his children in a quiet home-like way.

March on King Gobler From District Building

Thanksgiving Day will be given quiet observance by the three District Commissioners.

Commissioner Macfarland, president of the Board, will attend the morning services of the Church of the Covenant and in the afternoon will enjoy an old-fashioned Thanksgiving dinner with his family at home.

Golf will be the order of the morning for Commissioner West. Mr. West is an enthusiastic follower of the game, and a member of the Columbia Golf Club. He will play at foursome on the Columbia links in the morning, and will take dinner in the afternoon with his family.

Commissioner Biddle will devote the early portion of the day to a horseback ride through the country, accompanied by his brother, Capt. William S. Biddle, U. S. A., who is military attaché at Berlin, and Dr. A. P. Biddle, of Detroit.

In the afternoon, Col. Biddle will entertain his two brothers at dinner at his home on 11th street.

Dr. William Tindall, secretary of the District board, will go to the office in order to keep in shape for the Army-Navy football game at Princeton on Saturday.

My present intention is to use the day to rest up so that I may have the nerve and endurance to stay out the singular contest at Princeton between the West Pointers and their western opponents. Having had heart disease for the past twelve autumns, bearing the present one, looking at one of another of my own kind participating in that gentle sport, I want to know how it feels to see some other fellow's boys in that strenuous performance.

Majority of Bankers Will Remain at Home

Charles C. Glover, president of Riggs National Bank, will spend Thanksgiving Day on the golf links of the Chevy Chase Club.

Francis H. Smith, president of the Union Savings Bank, will spend the day at his home.

Charles A. James, president of the National Bank of Washington, will take his Thanksgiving dinner at home.

Robert N. Harper, president of the American National Bank, will spend the day with his family.

F. F. Norman, president of the Central National Bank, will remain at home.

Albert F. Fox, president of the Columbia National Bank, will enjoy his turkey at home.

Frederick C. Stevens, president of the Commercial National Bank, will spend the day with his family.

F. Thomas Brown, president of Farmers and Mechanics National Bank, expects to spend the day at his home.

B. F. Saul, president of the Home Savings Bank, having recently moved into his new home on Thirtieth street, will spend the day there.

J. S. Tait, manager of the International Banking Corporation, will take his dinner at his home on Columbia road.

J. B. Wilson, president of the Lincoln National Bank, will enjoy his turkey dinner at his home.

E. S. Parker, president of the National Metropolitan City Bank, will dine at home tomorrow.

W. V. Cox, president of the Second National Bank, will spend Thanksgiving at his home among "the hills of Brightwood."

George C. Henning, president of the Trades National Bank, will spend the day at his home.

O. G. Staples, president of Washington Savings Bank, will spend the day taking dinner with his family at the Riggs Hotel, after which he will be one of a theater party.

George L. Gibson, president of the Aetna Banking and Trust Company, who has been away from home for some time, will probably spend his Thanksgiving Day "midst the gold mines of Butte, Mont."

the Keep Commission, will leave Washington this afternoon for Buffalo, his home. He may not return to the city until the first of next week.

Assistant Secretary Reynolds will go somewhere to see a football game. "I have not seen a game this year," said Secretary Shaw's young assistant, "and I am thankful I will have that opportunity tomorrow."

Assistant Secretary Taylor will spend the day visiting friends. He will take dinner with a friend, and pass away the evening at a social gathering.

Hebrew Congregations Will Hold Joint Services

The congregation of the Sixth Street Hebrew Temple will unite with the congregation of the Eighth Street Synagogue in holding joint services tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Eighth street house of worship. Rabbi Stern, of Eighth street, and Rev. Loeb, of Sixth street, will conduct the services, and a sermon will be preached by Rev. Dr. Simpson.

President's Official Family Will Spend Day Quietly

Members of the Cabinet will spend the day, for the most part, quietly at home, or at small dinner parties.

Secretary Taft will observe the day quietly at home with his family. He may be at his desk for a few hours in the forenoon, although the department is closed, so far as the regular force of clerks is concerned.

Secretary Bonaparte will be with Mrs. Bonaparte at their country home, Elia Vista, in Maryland.

Secretary and Mrs. Shaw will dine with Prof. and Mrs. Willis Moore.

The Secretary of State will dine with his family here. With him will be his mother. It is probable that his young son will also be at the Thanksgiving dinner.

Secretary Wilson will dine quietly with his family at General Court.

Secretary and Mrs. Hitchcock will have with them for their Thanksgiving dinner, Lieutenant Commander and Mrs. Sims, who will have returned from their bridal tour by that time.

Secretary Cortelyou will dine with his family at their home in Boncroft Place. His son, George Bruce Cortelyou, Jr., will return for the day from Nazareth Hall, Nazareth, Pa., where he is at school.

It is probable that Attorney General Wood will spend the day out of town, although this is not definitely decided upon as yet.

The plans of Secretaries and Mrs. McCall are not yet known.

How Army and Navy Notables Will Take Turkey

Gen. Henry G. Sharpe, commissary general of the army, and until quite recently in active service in the Philippines, will entertain relatives from his home in New York. Mrs. Sharpe is widely known as a charming hostess, and the general says that he is quite content to remain in Washington on Thanksgiving. "Figuratively speaking," said General Sharpe, "I expect to remain in my official harness for the day, but, of course, I expect to enjoy the festive ceremonies of the day." For several years the general has celebrated the day serving his country in the Orient, but this year he proposes to enjoy a real American Thanksgiving.

Gen. William Crozier is another chief of a department who will spend the day in the city.

Chairman Shonts of the Isthmian Canal Commission, is now at his home in Chicago, where he proposes to spend the holiday season. It will be remembered that Mr. Shonts returned recently from his labors in Panama for the express purpose of being with his family on Thanksgiving.

Admiral George A. Converse, chief of the Bureau of Navigation, will spend the day in his apartments at the Connecticut House.

Third Assistant Secretary of State Herbert H. D. Peirce, together with Mrs. Peirce, will dine with friends. Mr. Peirce's two sons are attending college, and owing to midwinter examinations, they will be unable to join their parents in Washington.

Second Assistant Secretary of State Alvey A. Adee will spend the day with the confines of his Washington home.

Gen. John C. Bates, U. S. A., who commanded the late General Lawton's command of the Army of the Philippines, expects to dine with friends in this city.

"I shall spend Thanksgiving Day quietly in Washington," said Assistant Secretary of War Oliver.

Gen. F. C. Ainsworth and family expect to dine with friends in this city on Thanksgiving.

Sermons and Turkey From the Churches

Thanksgiving Day will be appropriately observed by services in all the local churches tomorrow. Nearly all the Episcopal and Catholic churches will hold two services—one early and the other at the regular morning hour.

Some churches will hold but one, but nearly every denomination will celebrate the day with two services.

Sermons on the significance of the day will be preached by the pastors. The ladies' auxiliaries will send generous turkey dinners to the poor of their respective parishes, and any family going hungry on Thanksgiving will do so because they fail to make their wants known.

All Financial Men Will Take Day Off

The financial institutions of the city will all be closed tomorrow, and the day will be as Sunday to the banks.

brokers' offices, stock exchange, and real estate offices.

Many of the men who control the money and kindred interests of Washington will leave the city on pleasure-seeking missions, and a number will probably attend the races at Benning.

S. J. Masters, president of the People's Savings Bank, will spend Thanksgiving Day with a few friends in his apartments at the Wyoming, after which he will go to his country seat, Van View, and indulge in a coon hunt.

Payn Doesn't Give "—" For Hughes' Committee

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—"The committee" snorted Louis F. Payn, former superintendent of insurance of the State of New York, "I don't give a— for the committee or for that matter for anybody else."

This is Payn's reply to the charge made before the Insurance Investigating Committee that Payn had offered for $40,000 to let the Mutual Reserve Life Insurance Company write its own report.

"Have you any statement to make today in reply to the testimony with regard to the Mutual Reserve?" asked a reporter.

"Not a word at this time," was Mr. Payn's reply.

"If I had any statement to make at this time I'd be glad to give it to you, but under the circumstances, and at the present time—"

"Do you mean the circumstances that you may be called by the insurance committee to testify about these matters?"

It was then that the grim features of the aged "field marshal of Chatham" lighted up with joy of defiance and he exploded with his remark about how

LET YOUR STOMACH HAVE ITS OWN WAY.

Do Not Try to Drive and Force It to Work When It Is Not Able or You Will Suffer All the More.

You cannot treat your stomach as some men treat a balky horse; force, drive, or even starve it into doing work at which it rebels. The stomach is a patient and faithful servant and will stand much abuse and ill treatment before it "balks," but when it does you had better go slow with it and not attempt to make it work. Some people have the mistaken idea that they can make their stomachs work by starving themselves. They might cure the stomach that way, but it would take so long that they would have no use for the stomach when they got through. The sensible way out of the difficulty is to let the stomach rest if it wants to and employ a substitute to do its work.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will do the work of your stomach for you and digest your food just as your stomach used to when it was well. You can prove this by putting your food in a glass jar with one of the tablets and sufficient water and you will see the food digested in just the same time as the digestive fluids of the stomach would do it. That will satisfy your mind. Now, to satisfy both your mind and body take one of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after eating—eat all and what you want—and you will feel in your mind that your food is digested because you will feel no disturbance or weight in your stomach. In fact, you will forget all about having a stomach just as you did when you were a healthy boy or girl.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets act in a natural way because they contain only the natural elements of the gastric juices and other digestive fluids of the stomach. It makes no difference what condition the stomach is in, they go right ahead of their own accord and do their work. They know their business and surrounding conditions do not influence them in the least. They thus relieve the weak stomach of all its burdens and give it its much needed rest and permit it to become strong and healthy.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are for sale by all druggists at 50 cents a box. They are so well known and their popularity is so great that a druggist would as soon think of being out of alcohol or quinine. In fact, physicians are prescribing them all over the land and if your own doctor is real honest with you, he will tell you frankly that there is nothing on earth so good for dyspepsia as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

SCHWAB'S PALACE NOW COMPLETED

Five-Million-Dollar Home a Marvel.

OPENS UP ON THURSDAY

Gem of Architecture in Pittsburg Occupying Acres Ready for Occupancy on Thanksgiving.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Charles M. Schwab's new $5,000,000 house in Riverside Drive will be ready for occupancy on Thanksgiving Day. It is not known that Mr. Schwab will eat his Thanksgiving turkey in his new home, but he may do so.

The Schwab palace occupies the entire block bounded by Seventy-third and Seventy-fourth streets, West End avenue and Riverside Drive. It is built of golden cream granite in the French Renaissance style. The building is surrounded by terraces, lawns and gardens.

This palace has four stories and an attic and roof terrace above, a cellar and basement. The first floor, containing the main rooms of the house, is thirty feet above the level of Riverside Drive, and from its windows a good view of the Hudson is to be had.

The second floor is given up to the rooms of the private suites of Mr. and Mrs. Schwab. The third floor contains the guest rooms, and the fourth the servants' quarters. The entire wing facing Seventy-fourth street is given up to the art gallery, which contains many masterpieces, and in the wing facing Seventy-third street are the kitchen and pantries.

Its main hall, staircase and reception hall are in the style of Francis I., the keynote of the composition being taken from the interior of the chateau of Blois. The main hall, which is two and one-half stories high, is surrounded by a gallery and arcade leading to all the principal rooms on the second floor, as well as to the chapel, which contains a large organ, and is decorated with a large central glass window by E. Weinand, representing dramatic music, sacred music and poetry.

Taken from the exterior of Fontainebleau, the library is in the style of Henry II. The historic mantle of the celebrated gallery of Henry II has been introduced in its composition.

Lighting by Reflection.

There is a separate air register for each living room, with a separate heating coil, and the system is so perfect in every detail that the occupant of any one room can instantly change its temperature without affecting the temperature of any other room. The lights are for the most part, hidden away from sight, the lighting of the rooms being brought about by reflection.

Opening off the entrance hall at the right is the Louis XVI drawing room. Aside from the white enamel and gold furnishings, the features of this room are the painted allegory of Eden, appearing on the ceiling, and two tapestries representing Boucher's "Love Messages," woven in America by French artisans from cartoons prepared by Arthur Thomas.

Curtains Cost $10,000.

The dining plates, intended for about thirty guests and forming only one small item of the table furnishings, cost about $10,000. The lace curtains throughout the house, all of which were made in special designs, also cost about $10,000.

Private apartments of Mr. and Mrs. Schwab occupy the entire front of the second floor, in the north corner is Mrs. Schwab's bedroom, which is in Louis XVI style, with blue brocade walls. The ceiling painting of this room represents "Morning Music." Mr. Schwab's bedroom, which is in the same style, has pale green silk walls, and its ceiling painting represents the "Awakening of the Cupids."

Between the two rooms and connected with each is a little library in Louis XVI style, its woodwork of green enamel and its walls of old rose damask. The house has three elevators, operated by electricity. One of these is for the use of the family and guests; the second, on the opposite side of the house, is for the servants, and the third is at the rear for freight. These are also separate stairways for guests and servants throughout the building.
